www.surfingmuseum.org

Huntington Beach International Surfing Museum was founded several decades ago by a woman who has never surfed. Natalie Kotsch recognized an incredible beach vibe and welcoming spirit in Huntington Beach. Thanks to her efforts, many of the great surfboards and local history have an opportunity to be preserved in a huge, cataloged collection that rotates in the museum. Tourists and locals can visit this surfing museum for a very small fee. Especially popular with surfers from around the globe, they visit the museum to share stories and find out where some of their favorite local surfers are surfing these days.
